There were no objections.

3. President’s Remarks
University President Mark B. Rosenberg provided an overview of the ongoing mission of FIU in DC, such as enhancing student learning and internship opportunities, deepening the reach and impact of the University’s preeminent researchers, amplifying FIU’s voice in national conversations, in addition to enhancing student and alumni employment success.

President Rosenberg also discussed the goal of creating future competitive advantages for the students, faculty, alumni, community and corporate University partners. He also provided a brief description of the floor plan for FIU space, which he noted is centrally located adjacent to Capitol Hill, the Washington Center, and two metro stations and is expected to total 3,428 square feet. He noted that space utilization would include alumni gatherings, working space for interns, faculty, and alumni, guest speakers, executive level seminars, and small group teaching classes for graduate students and interns. He further noted that the Steven J. Green School of International and Public Affairs, the Office of Research and Economic Development, and Advancement have been identified as revenue opportunities.

Trustee Leonard Boord inquired as to FIU’s plans for additional satellite offices in other locations around the country. He further inquired as to the benefits of satellite offices and the tangible measurable objectives.

President Rosenberg explained that the FIU in DC satellite office aligned with the twenty goals of FIU’s Strategic Plan and that the University had no immediate plans for expanding beyond DC aside from the expectation of establishing a presence in a free and democratic Cuba. He delineated the financial interest and benefits of FIU’s satellite office in DC. Trustee Alexis Calatayud also discussed the support of the student body on FIU having a presence in DC.

Trustees requested a yearly progress report over the next five years that details the evolution and advantages of FIU’s presence in DC.

4. Discussion Items

4.1 Upcoming Legislative Session and FIU Day
Vice President of Governmental Relations Michelle L. Palacio provided an overview of the 2015 Legislative Priorities. She compared the former and the new Legislative Budget Request processes noting that the current process has implemented a new complex cycle including accountability measures that have been put in place by the legislature and the Governor. A discussion ensued on the differences between the new and prior processes and the advantages and disadvantages of both.

Trustees suggested the new process be discussed with the Governor at FIU Day 2016.

4.2 FIU in DC Update
This was presented by President Rosenberg as part of Agenda Item 3.

4.3 Startup Weekend @FIU
Vice President for Engagement Saif Y. Ishoof provided a brief overview of Startup Weekend @FIU noting that it is designed to enable developers, designers and entrepreneurs to create, pitch and launch their startup ideas. He added that Startup Weekend provides a unique networking resource for students seeking employment and internship opportunities. He noted that this was the first time that FIU participated in Startup Weekend and that the event was anchored by the School of Journalism and Mass Communication. He stated that there was a record number of participants from the community, alumni, students, and, in addition, the highest amount of pitches, particularly from the student body. He stated that the winning team from Startup Weekend was comprised of FIU students who created an app titled, the Headliner. He also stated that the team would be entering the global Startup battle competition.

4.4 Talent Development Network
VP Ishoof noted that Talent Development Network (TDN) is an internship portal created as a partnership between FIU and six other academic institutions in Miami-Dade County, with the mission of the partnership being to make significant strides in its goal of connecting top talent with industry partners. He added that more than 90 employers have registered on TDNmiami.com to post their paid internship positions. He mentioned that TDN was featured at the Greater Miami Chamber of Commerce Education Summit during a panel on “Human Capital Investment: Pathways to Education.”

4.5 Images and Voices of Hope
VP Ishoof noted that Images and Voices of Hope is a nonprofit organization whose mission is to engage the community in a dialogue about how media can positively impact communities. He further noted that in collaboration with the nonprofit Images and Voices of Hope, FIU hosted a one-day conference on October 28, 2015 on the power of media to make a difference in the world. He stated that the event, “Storytelling to Change the World”, brought together FIU students and faculty, media practitioners and members of the community in a thought-provoking discussion about how stories can spark action, heal communities and create change.

4.6 Life Sciences South Florida
VP Ishoof stated that Life Sciences South Florida (LSSF) continues to focus its programming and activities on supporting the growth of life sciences in the region, with the goal of increasing student opportunities in this arena. He noted that earlier in the month, LSSF hosted a webinar on the free, Internet-based, multidisciplinary STEAM (science, technology, engineering, art and math) program that the Ocean Research & Conservation Association has designed for grades 9-12. He further noted that LSSF is planning its first annual Lifees event, to be held in the Spring, to recognize members of the life sciences industry for excellent collaboration with life sciences students and college/university programs.

Black Tech Week

Black Tech Week, a startup business conference geared toward minority businesspeople in science, technology, engineering and math fields was hosted at FIU’s Biscayne Bay Campus from Feb 17-20, 2016. This was an opportunity for students, faculty and the community to come together during Black History Month to learn from entrepreneurial experts and network with peers in the startup field. As we continue to push to become leaders in inclusive STEM programs, our partnership with Black Tech Week is a natural extension of the commitment we have to building the next generation of entrepreneurs and business leaders, people who are reflective of our community.

The roster of speakers included: Jeff Hoffman, co-founder of Priceline.com; Kathryn Finney, founder of Digital Undivided; Justin Washington, QA engineer at Snapchat; Frederick Hutson, founder/CEO of Pigeonly; Chris Powell, CEO of BlackbookHR; Eunice Cofie, founder, CEO and Chief Chemist of Nuekie; William Crowder, managing director of DreamIt Ventures; and George E. Curry, founder of Emerge Magazine and previous Editor-in-Chief of National Newspaper Publishers Association, just to name a few. Key highlights of the conference included the Knight Foundation Angel Pitch competition with Power Moves, a Women Innovators in Tech panel, Tech HAHA Hackathon and Comedy Show, and a Patent and Trade Market workshop for Women Innovators. The summit culminated with the Women Innovation Brunch that spotlights women tech achievers sponsored by Baptist Health.

Office of Engagement co-sponsored the event. We had a total of 576 registered attendees, out of which approximately 110 were FIU students, for the conference, and 1900 total participants in the entire week of programming.

One Community One Goal Academic Leaders Council

Working with our academic and industry partners in Miami-Dade County through the One Community One Goal Academic Leaders Council (OCOG ALC), FIU continues to break new ground in its collaborative efforts to improve student success and access. On Friday, February 26, and Monday, March 14, FIU joined the Beacon Council in hosting the OCOG ALC committee meetings with leaders from the business, economic development and education communities. During the meeting, members reported on data regarding their institutions’ retention and attrition rates. Members discussed ways to collectively address common factors leading to student attrition. The Talent Development Network Program Coordinator reported on the current successes of the ALC-wide internship program, while the group also discussed the creation of career portals—an online program designed to help students of all ages, parents and academic advisors plan school to career pathways. The ALC’s goal is to create a world-class educational ecosystem – and by continuing to open up dialogue among the presidents and superintendent of each of the seven ALC institutions, important strides toward that end, for our students, are being accomplished.

Life Sciences South Florida

Life Sciences South Florida (LSSF): LSSF continues to focus its programming and activities on supporting the growth of life sciences in the region, with the goal of increasing student opportunities in this arena. LSSF hosted its fourth annual STEM Undergraduate Student Research Symposium on Saturday, April 2. Students from LSSF member institutions convened at Broward College to present their original research to expert judges, as well as had the chance to learn from exceptional keynote speakers. Additionally, LSSF held its first annual Lifees event, at the eMerge Americas Conference on Monday, April 18, 2016. The Lifees event recognized members of the life sciences industry for excellent collaboration with life sciences students and college/university programs. LSSF member students, faculty, and administration had the chance to learn from a panel of expert women in STEM, hear from keynote speakers, and sit among life sciences industry and supporters.

The Miami Job Flea

The Talent Development Network (TDN), in partnership with The New Tropic and the Arts & Entertainment District, hosted the “The Miami Job Flea”, a job and internship fair for students and young professionals across Miami-Dade County. More than 1,000 students indicated they would attend. The event was an enormous success in attracting Miami’s young talent and connecting them with jobs and internship opportunities with employers as diverse as the Miami Heat, Adrienne Arsht Center, Uber, and more. The event culminated in an hour long lightning round speaker series on talent in Miami featuring the Knight Foundation’s Matt Haggman, FIU VP for Engagement Saif Ishoof, and Pandwe Gibson of EcoTech Visions.

The event directly led to:

- 20 new internships being posted on TDNMiami.com
- 25 new employer registrations
- 53 new registered students
- 115 applications processed
